

THE ANDREW McDONOUGH B+ FOUNDATION®

It's not a grade. It's an attitude.

Andrew's Life and Legacy

The Andrew McDonough B+ Foundation was born out of tragedy after athlete and "A" student, Andrew McDonough, passed away from complications of leukemia on July 14th, 2007, at the age of fourteen. Andrew's blood type and the family's motto was, and continues to be, "B+" - Be Positive. The overall goal of The B+ Foundation is to "Do Good," accomplished by:

1 Sponsor research to find cures for childhood cancers and improve treatment options.

2 Provide financial assistance to families of children with cancer around the country.

3 Increase awareness of childhood cancer and advocate for increased research funds.

4 Keep the B+ Mission alive! Andrew taught us to have fun, show affection, set goals, try our best, appreciate all the blessings that we have, and to keep our lives in perspective. Most importantly, to make time for our loved ones. In short, we need to Live Like Andrew™.

Childhood cancer is the #1 disease killer of children & teenagers, more than any other disease.
